Dear students,

Welcome to the University of Parma.

This Brief Guide is a useful tool which provides you with the main information regarding the course catalogue, the services and facilities of our University, in order to guide you during the first steps of your new academic path. Inside this booklet, you will find the list of degree and post-graduate courses, the addresses, the contacts and essential descriptions of what the University of Parma offers you to enrich your study and life experience: online services, a website and social networks, libraries, laboratories, top-level research, exchange programmes with foreign countries, support for disabled students, language courses, sports facilities and much more.

The University of Parma, which boasts a thousand years of history, has now about 27,000 students and 1,723 professors, researchers and administrative staff. Its rich course catalogue is made up of 40 First Cycle Degree Courses, 46 Second Cycle Degree Courses (7 of which entirely held in English) and 6 Single Cycle Degree Courses organized into 9 Departments. In the city centre you can find the Departments of Arts and Humanities, Economics, Law and Politics, Medicine and Surgery and Veterinary Science. The other scientific Departments (Chemistry, Life Sciences and Environmental Sustainability; Engineering and Architecture; Food and Drug; Mathematical, Physical and Computer Sciences) are located in the University Campus, a 77-hectare area in the southern side of the city which also hosts a brand new Technopole and cutting-edge sports facilities for all students.

In addition, Parma is a very nice human-scale city, where life is pleasant and inhabitants are friendly and welcoming: it is not by chance that more than half of our students comes from other Italian provinces, and, consequently, our University is ranked among the top ones for the number of non-resident students.

Welcome, research, attention and innovation: they are the key elements to fully accomplish our mission, that is to grant you a complete and authentic experience of personal, intellectual and professional growth. You are, indeed, the centre of all our activities, the heart of one of the most important European Universities, which still preserves its ancient prestige while projecting itself into the future.

A really warm welcome to all of you!

The Rector
It was right in Parma, in 781 A.D., where Charlemagne and the monk Alcuin of York met to lay the foundations for the rebirth of the Palatine School: this was the first important citation of the cultural vocation of the city and its higher education activities. With an imperial decree dated 13th March 962 AD, Emperor Otto I conferred on Uberto, the Bishop of Parma, the power to order and elect legal leaders, allowing them to exert their authority throughout the Empire.

A number of important professors and students chose to study in Parma as far back as the 11th and 12th centuries; to name but a few, the theologian San Pier Damiani or the monk Donizone, who praised the high school of Parma in its “Vita comitissae Mathildis” (1115): “Parma leads the way in grammar [...] the seven arts are taught with passion.”

The prestige of Parma further lasted for the following centuries: even the famous poet Petrarch sent his son to study there.

According to the historian Ernest Dümmler, Parma has been a “celebrated seat of learning” since the 11th century, attracting students from countries beyond the Alps. Sinibaldo dei Fieschi and Simone de Brion studied in Parma before becoming, respectively, Pope Innocent IV and Pope Martin IV. In the 16th century the House of Farnese founded in Parma one of the most prestigious University colleges ever seen in Italy. In the 18th century Parma welcomed some distinguished scholars like the Illuminist philosopher Condillac, while in the early 19th century its popularity was so high that Napoleon extended its jurisdiction as far as Alessandria.

The University of Parma has been able to maintain its vitality for a thousand years thanks to its key capacity of constantly keeping up with the times. Nowadays, the results of such success are evident in every department, through its links with the world of work, its technological facilities and its excellent research activities. Moreover, there is a continuous effort towards the improvement of services to ease students’ academic life, to make their educational background more effective and to simplify their access to working careers.
Today, more than ever, “innovation” is one of the keywords of the University of Parma. Within the structures of the University of Parma there are scientific research activities of world excellence. The research areas range from agri-food to biotechnology, from pharmaceutical innovation to experimental medicine, not to mention the importance of studies in the legal, economic, humanistic, engineering, architectural and veterinary medical fields. Among the excellences, we must not forget the discoveries on the “mirror neurons” in the area of Neuroscience, the studies in Information Engineering that led to the creation of autonomous vehicles (without driver), the studies in the field of mathematics and those in the food sector, in which the University of Parma - also thanks to its position in the center of the Food Valley - aims to consolidate its status as a reference point, not only at regional level.

Another basic element of the University of Parma is the activity carried out within the Tecnopolo, where both the applied research of the interdepartmental centers and the “labs” of University partner companies in the research activities can develop, within a Campus which is the heart of innovation for the whole area.
A LOVELY PLACE TO LIVE

A FRIENDLY CITY FOR MODERN LIVING

Busy but not chaotic, tidy but not boring, Parma is a perfect combination of beauty and efficiency: a pleasant medium-sized city of about 197,000 inhabitants where riding a bicycle is the ideal way to move around. The neighbouring peaceful countryside is enclosed by the fascinating Po valley to the north and the woods of the Apennines to the south. The Ligurian sea is also an hour away by car. The high quality of living in Parma is immediately perceivable and the University perfectly takes part in this favourable mix of fluid economic activities, especially the remarkable food industry and the typical pleasure for life of the inhabitants of Emilia Romagna. Parma received many awards in recent years:

- Since 2003, seat of the European Food Safety Authority (EFSA)
- Since 2015, named by UNESCO “Creative City for Gastronomy”

In 2020, Parma has been appointed as “Italian capital of culture”.

SO MUCH TO SEE, TO DO, TO DISCOVER

Parma offers a wide range of cultural and entertainment opportunities all year round: about twenty theatres and cinemas, exhibitions, museums and art galleries where you can admire the masterpieces of the local painters Correggio and Parmigianino and a worldwide famous opera house, the Teatro Regio. Music has a leading role in the city, with the Verdi opera festival or the international jazz music festival, rock concerts and performances in the modern Paganini Auditorium designed by the well-known architect Renzo Piano.

“Parma University City” is a joint project between University and municipality of Parma with the aim of making Parma a more and more suitable city for university students, gathering ideas and suggestions directly from the protagonists.

LE ELI-CHE: SERVICE FOR STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES AND DISADVANTAGED PEOPLE - SERVICES FOR STUDENTS WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES OR SPECIAL EDUCATIONAL NEEDS

The Delegate of the Rector, Prof. Caronna, and her collaborators welcome disabled students at the Eli-Che. Eli-Che provides assistance in creating personalized academic curricula as well as grants, the latest equipment and services required for personal needs [Law 104/92]. Students with certified disabilities of 66% or higher, or possessing the Law 104 certification must submit the documentation to the Students’ Registry Office of their course, since they are entitled to exemption from university tuition fees. Through the Eli-Che, these students can request to be supported by a student tutor or peer who attends the same course and who will be paid for the 150 hours of work [Law 17/99]. Disabled students can also follow specific programmes for Erasmus scholarships, can do voluntary work and obtain ECTS credits, can co-organize events and can take part in activities (if a disabled student is accompanied to a CUS course by a tutor peer student, they will both obtain ECTS credits for sport activities). The Eli-Che service also welcomes and helps students with certified disabilities of less than 66% and students in temporary or permanent need, including students with learning disabilities and with Special Educational Needs (B.E.S.). Students with Specific learning difficulties (D.S.A.) must hand in their certified diagnosis to the Eli-Che in order for the service to plan specific educational programmes.
